Trooper H. E. Martindale of the Florida Highway Patrol reported an unusual catch for him any way on Monday. He came in with an 8 pound, 2 oz. bass. He says there's more fun in catching fish than speckers.

The fish continue hitting this week and another good weekend is forecast.

FCD Considers Millage Hike

West Palm Beach — Establishment of millage, for tax purposes for 1968-69, will be considered by the Governing Board of the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District at 9 A. M. Friday, July 12, at the Lee County Commission Chambers, Fort Myers.

Robert W. Padrick of Fort Pierce, Board Chairman, noted that information has not yet been received from all 18 counties in the District concerning the drainage valuation. However, most of the counties have provided information, and by Friday it is hoped that a decision can be taken on the annual levy.

The current FCD levy is 33/100 of one mill per dollar of property value. This amounts to 33 cents per year for each $1-000 of non-exempt valuation.
During the past four years, the FCD Board has cut the millage each year. It is possible the Board may have to increase the levy somewhat this year.

If it is necessary for the Board to postpone action Friday, it is expected that a special meeting will be called in late July to establish the millage.

Water conditions throughout the 15,000 square mile District will also be reviewed.

The Census Taker Was A Korashan

IT WON'T be too long before time for the next Federal census, and that puts in the mind of the man who took the census of the south shore of Lake Okechobee in 1920, I don't know if the census bureau bothered to check the lake in 1910, for then there were only a few hunters and a scattered lot of cut fish camps on this lake, but since that date a right smart number of people had arrived. In 1920 there was a thriving settlement at Bare Beach and also at Miami Locks (what we call Lake Harbor now), as well as some people at South Bay and scattered along the canal where Chosen and Belle Glade are today. And there were three big settlements in the sawgrass.
Okolekats was the biggest, but Glade Creek, at Six Mile Bend, already was about deserted, and there was Gardena, six miles down the Miami Canal. This is settlement had been started by the land agent H. H. Hart who later lived in Chosen. It is his daughter, Eash, who has now writes several travel articles from around the world for this Belle Glade Herald.

Dr. Charles R. Price was this census taker and his home was in Gardena, though he once had been in Chosen. He was a big framed, he was, with bushy white hair and a grand moustache, and about sixty-five years of age at this time. I was living alone at Okolekats in a twelve by sixteen shack with a lean-to kitchen, so I was right smart pleased for to have him stay with me while he was working that part of the Glades.

Now, I was young and I hadn't had a two school year 'armist' so I was proud for to have such a distinguished guest, for he was well educated, and a doctor at that, so I allowed as how I might maybe learn a little from him, but gee whiz, did he have some dizzy beliefs! He loved to expound them after supper, while pacing the floor and stroking his cheeks with a big straight razor. This instructor, he explained, had been stolen from his uncle in Chicago, but Dr. Price had discovered it in a pawn shop in Mexico City.
In an embossed leather case, it had seven detachable blades, one for each day of the week on the theory that they would keep a keener edge if given a few days rest after each use.

His favorite subject was his belief that the earth is a hollow sphere, like a tennis ball, with live on the inside of the shell.
While the sun, moon and stars float around inside. In other words, he was a disciple of Dr.
Cyrrus R. Teed, who called them the Korashans. This Dr. Teed, in Chicago, had organized a cult where an old German, Gustav Gustav, had migrated to South Florida.

The Korashans had even made a scientific test nearby at the Bay of Naples, which was long ago straight shore. To produce an absolutely straight horizontal line, a series of accurately measured, double squares were made and placed end to end.
These were supported on posts along the shore for four miles.
The first one was lined up and sighted on the horizon. At intervals, holes were dug in the sand to get the distance to the water. One night, when all was ready, a light was flashed and watchers at each water hole marked the elevation of the straight line above the water.
Strains to relate, although at the time.

Commissioner

It was decided to hold an administrative session with Palm Springs officials and supervisors of the drainage couldn't be John Rybovich, heading a drive to eliminate sharks from country waters near the beach. asked the board if it would administer funds allotted to guarantee wages to a professional shark killer and his crew. The matter was referred to an administrative meeting to determine if a county agency would handle it.

Rybovich informed commissioners that the fishermen also wanted a one-year agreement, at $100 for himself, boat and crew per day, but there would be rebates since the hunter would pay one dollar for each hooked shark.
Rybovich estimated an average catch of 200 sharks a week for a time since the boat would put out 500 to 1,000 hooks each night.

Commissioner Warren suggested the Area Development Board might be the agency to supervise the program.

In referring the matter to an administrative session for review, the board also indicated it would consider funds for the program during budget talks for the next fiscal year which begins in October. The county already has allocated $5,000 this fiscal year to the shark eradication project.

In other action, the commissioner—Learned from Commissioner Bandlow that 50 property owners had complained about operation of a dog kennel and breeding business on Kirk Road in a residential zone. The matter was referred to the Zoning and Health Departments.

Sawgrass Sagas

The Census Taker Was A Korashan

Dunkholder, had decided to the first station, this line was 10 feet and 8 inches elevation, yet a mile away it was 8 inches nearer to the water at two miles it was 30.6 inches nearer, at three miles, 75 inches, and at the fourth mile the line had run right up into the water. This tallied with the census of the earth all right, but great grief, it showed that the water surface curved up instead of down! How can you explain that?

Dr. Price had some other strange ideas, one of which was that since as a race, the Caucasians exist mentally and the negroes physically, all you need to produce a race of super men is to mix the two races 50-50. He seemed to overlook the possibility that the bad qualities of both races could just as well be mixed, and wouldn't that produce a mess!

For his census taking, Dr. price obtained a boat, at least he called it that. It was about 14 feet long, shaped somewhat like a slice of pie, and was of Dred & Co. Pine, heavy as lead. For power he'd bought a one cylinder outboard kicker engine, a Korashan, but of that, more later on. Anyway, wide open, it could push the boat at the dizzy speed of four miles an hour—well, maybe five miles downstream. In this boat he cruised alone, along the south shore as far west as the County Line, to all the islands and down all the canals.

He had just got his job completed when his Koban conked out. At that time I had a little two bit repair shop at Okolekats, so he sent the engine to me to fix. I considered myself quite quite a whiz kid with gasoline engines, even two cycle engines, which could be as bulky as a Georgia mule. Well, this was the first outboard engine I'd ever seen, but it was a gasoline engine and a two cycle one at that, so I figured it should be no sweat.
I didn't seem to be having much luck, so I sent to the factory for some parts, but still she refused to pop-pop.

About that time, due to the work of our many floods, I got a job in Ft. Lauderdale's main canal.

Garage, at the end of the Ave- nue bridge.

Mr. Harmon had owned it until he died in the post office, he tried customer had got into an argument with him, and shot him dead in the post office, he now his widow had taken over.
That Koban I clamped to the edge of a barrel of water at the back door of the garage, and when not busy otherwise I did my utmost to make the engine run. The other mechanics only too glad to show up a dumb muck rat, took turns at it as well. Even the foreman, a first class mechanic, to be sure, had no luck. It got to where the whole crew got to calling me Koban. I finally sent it back to Dr. Price, but if it ever ran again, I've never heard tell of it yet.

This same flood also caused Dr. Price to leave Gardena, and so where do you suppose, the lightning struck knobber went?
Why, to Estero, of course! Now I'm sure that time he was a physician, had married his nurse, and was a very neat figure of a woman who was to be sure, though she was a right smart younger than he was. And so they went to Estero, another of his dizzy ideas, where a man of his caliber to spend the night with his own wife (or any one else's either).

Maybe by that time he was a too old to enjoy her company anyway, but of that I wouldn't know. But educated people can have some of the craziest notions.
If that's what a college does for you, brother, you can have it.

YOUR MONEY

By Richard A. Foster
The first "modern" prototype of the savings and loan association as we know it was born in Birmingham, England back in 1781. It was called a building society. It was a voluntary association of a small number of people who got together to pool their savings with the idea of helping a member in turn to borrow from this "pool" to build a house.

Why weren't there any savings and loan societies before this? Mainly because so many people lived as agriculturists in 1781. They often built their own dwellings, alone or with the help of neighbors. And they never had much in the way of cash savings.

The industrial revolution changed all that. It brought people flocking to the cities, where a new worker class grew up. That's when the need for a financial institution where a man could put aside small amounts of savings became acute. Lending these savings idea to the need for help in financing a home, the cooperative savings and loan association was born.

Today more than ever our savings and loan association can play an important role in your life... enabling you to save to build rapidly, earning high dividends, and providing the financing needed when you buy or build a home. Why not start your account with us now!

PERIL WITHIN
Our military might and consumer buying power have made America the envy of nations and individuals around the world. As we long, summer drags on, it is evident we are not inhabitants of an earthly paradise.

We need, perhaps, to strengthen our moral fiber. This will not be an overnight process. It must begin with an "old-fashioned" approach to life.

One may argue for hours about the causes and the undercurrents which spawn chaotic conditions in our great cities. But there is nothing new here. These conditions have existed for some time.

What is much newer and a more relevant sign of moral decay, is the increase in youthful lawlessness, youthful belieflessness, youthful lack of respect for traditions and institutions.

Rev. Pasetti Will Speak At Baptist Center

The Rev. Alexander Pasetti will be the guest speaker at the Belle Glade Baptist Center, NW Avenue 1 and 12th Street, at the eleven o'clock worship service Sunday morning, July 16.

Rev. Pasetti is a graduate of Wake Forest College, North Carolina, and of the New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary.

He is an employee of the Baptist Home Mission Society serving in the Glades area.

LDS Missionaries Working In Glades

Arriving here last Wednesday, two young missionaries of the Church of Christ of Latter Day Saints, are making their headquarters at the local LDS Mission in Belle Glade.

Elder Blackburn is from Pleasanton, Calif., and Elder Whomes is a native of Long Beach, Calif. Working throughout the communities of Belle Glade, Clewiston and Pahokee, they are telling the people about the Book of Mormon and its history. The nickname "Mormon," Whomes said, "comes from the Book of Mormon—a record of the ancient inhabitants of America, written on Gold Plates by prophets of God, who lived here between 600 B.C. and 420 years A.D."

The missionaries work under the direction of their mission president, Glen L. Rude, who resides at the Mission home in Winter Park, Fla. They will be doing Mission work for two years in Florida, Georgia and Alabama.

World Meditation

ON the first Tuesday in July, church bells rang symbolizing a new Christian unity. That same week, the World Council of Churches Assembly convened in Uppsala, Sweden. Approximately two hundred and twenty denominations are meeting under the triumphant promise: "Behold, I make all things new." Members from Orthodox, Anglican and Protestant churches, and the Roman Catholic observing for the first time, are seeking the meaning of renewal in our day.

The promise of renewal is rooted in the Old Testament, where the prophet Isaiah told us that renewal cannot come about by merely patching up the old—the renewal must be basic.

The ecumenical movement, symbolized at world level by the World Council of Churches, is itself an act of renewal. Leaders of the churches today see in this work of the Holy Spirit, as the new warmth of fellowship is felt through the Christian communions.

PRAYER: O God, we are grateful for the promise that all things can be made new. Bless, we pray Thee, the work of the World Council of Churches Assembly in Uppsala. May it be an instrument in the renewal of Christ's church throughout the world. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY
"I make all things new"—this promise applies not only to churches but to individuals.

De Interes En Belle Glade

REDUCIENDO EL NIVEL DEL AGUA.

Debido a las fuertes lluvias que han caído en la Florida, un máximo esfuerzo para reducir los niveles de agua estuvo haciendo la semana pasada el Central & Southern Florida Flood Control District (Control de Inundaciones en Florida Central y del Sur).

El Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission (Comisión de Cacería y Pesca) fue notificada que tomara cualquier medida necesaria para proteger los venados y otras especies de vida salvaje en las áreas de conservación.

La pasada semana en el Broward County tenian medio pie sobre el nivel recomendado para los venados y especies de vida salvaje. El Lago Okeechobee tenía 8 1/2 de pie sobre la inundación. El Army Corps de Engineers estuvo descargando el exceso de agua desde el Lago Okeechobee al Golfo de México, por un volumen de 4,380 pies cúbicos por segundo.

También se han tomado medidas en Palm Beach County, que es un área de conservación de vida salvaje, y en el Tamiami Trail que cubre 24 compañías de Control de Aguas que separa el Conservación area 3 del Everglades National Park.

El Conservación area 3, donde se halla la "isla de los venados" se halla cerca del Miami Canal, el cual estaba siendo excavado para traer mas agua al Parque, y ahora está siendo utilizado para reducir el estado de inundación evitando esta, en la parte norte del Conservación area.

Tips For Family Living

By BETTY KLARNET

Animals, like humans, can suffer from too much heat. Special care should be taken of them during summer's "dog days."

For example, according to an article by Elizabeth Randolph in the August Family Circle magazine, neither dogs nor cats should be allowed out in the direct sun for long. City dogs should not be walked on the hot streets, except early in the morning and late at night. Lots of cool water should always be available, and if an animal refuses to eat, he should not be urged.

And again, as with humans, these rules are especially valid for very young, very old, or very fat animals.

Some other pointers for the summer pet care:
If your pet becomes weak, falls over or loses consciousness, make him comfortable and call your veterinarian. The pet may be in a state of extreme shock.

Cats often choose to sleep in a hot or stuffy place, such as an attic or closet. During very hot weather, don't let them do this, for cats as well as dogs suffer from heat prostration.

Birds and smaller animals also should be protected against extreme heat. Their living quarters should be kept scrupulously clean and fresh water made available daily. Cages should be in the coolest spot in the house where there is some motion of air, although not in a draft.

Keep handling to a minimum.

Fish tanks, turtle bowls, and aquariums should be cleaned often to prevent buildup of decaying matter that can reduce oxygen and prove fatal.

Cats and dogs always shed fur as warm weather approaches, so keep them well-groomed, the Family Circle article advises. If your dog has long hair, he should be trimmed. However, the animal needs some fur to protect him from the sun and insects. A dog should not be bathed often than once every four to six weeks, winter or summer. Daily brushing will take care of loose dirt. Skin problems for pets are more common in summer than in winter.

DANGEROUS AGE FOR INFANTS

Before they reach the walking stage, babies fall from high places with almost incredible frequency. According to a report in the August issue of Family Circle magazine, credited to the A.M.A. Journal, most falls occur about the age of seven and a half months. At that age "infants begin to roll from prone to supine position, to sit up, pull themselves to standing position, and climb. Many parents are unprepared for these new motor activities and underestimate the resulting danger of falling."

Studying 536 infants, a team of Illinois investigators found a combined incidence of 47.5% first falls from cribs, adult beds, or dressing tables during the first year. Almost all resulted in head injuries. If the same incident holds nationally, the report points out, 1,750,000 infants annually sustain at least one fall in their first year.

CASSEROLE CLEANING

Having trouble cleaning glass or ceramic casseroles that have burned-on bits of food (especially around the edges)? A tip from a reader in the August Family Circle magazine: spray with oven cleaner, let stand 20 minutes, then wash in sudsy hot water. You'll find no more scrubbing is needed.

B.G.H.S. Site Of P.E. Activities For Three Schools

The high school recreational grounds, gym, and weightlifting room are the sites of the recreational activities for Belle Glade High, Belle Glade Junior High, and Belle Glade Elementary, reported E. S. Jenkins, head football coach at Belle Glade High, who is in charge of the Elementary program.

These programs are organized "to give them (speaking of the students) an opportunity to participate in something during the summer so they won't be in the streets," Jenkins said.

Students from three schools meet daily at Belle Glade High School to participate in the recreational activities sponsored there as part of the summer enrichment program.

The recreational areas are open from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. and may be used by any registered student attending either of the three schools, Jenkins said. The equipment for both the indoor and outdoor sports, which includes basketball, volleyball, table tennis, baseball and softball, is provided by the high school. "Weight lifting is limited to only junior and senior high school students," Jenkins specified.

Head Coach Othar Crawford is the Center Coordinator and is in charge of the High School program. Coach Dwight Ward is assigned the Jr. High program.

Enrolled so far in the program are 173 students from the three schools.

New Vocational School To Open

Following months of preparation and planning, South Florida Junior College will open two of the full time vocational courses for student enrollment this fall. The building is being prepared, equipment ordered and instructors hired to engage in a new type of program which will train people for full time employment.

To open this fall are courses in air-conditioning — refrigeration and also radio, television electronics. A person taking either one of these courses will attend South Florida Junior College all day, five days a week for the school year. He will be a full time student studying a technical subject to prepare for a job upon graduation.
